Wall of Fame Unveiled

On Sunday, October 15, 2000 six distinguished alumni were inducted into the School of Criminal Justice Wall of Fame during ceremonies conducted at the University Club of Michigan State University. This award honors distinguished alumni of the School of Criminal Justice. The school has been a leader in criminal justice studies and has consistently produced graduates who have excelled in police, courts, corporate security, and corrections departments both nationally and globally. The award is designed to recognize alumni who have made positive impacts in advancing the cause of justice in their respective fields.

The year 2000 Wall of Fame honorees were:

Arthur F. Brandstatter retired after 45 years in education, law enforcement and military service. Mr. Brandstatter retired from the Army Reserves in 1974 with the rank of Brigadier General. He is most noted among alumni as the School’s first Director when it was known as the School of Police Administration.

Penny C. Harrington is currently the Founding Director of the National Center for Women and Policing. She was the first woman appointed Chief of Police of a major United States police department when she became Chief in the Portland Oregon Police Department in 1985.

Brigadier General Emil P. Eschenburg began his 32-year military career with the Artillery in the Michigan National Guard. He served in World War II as a member of the 1st Special Services, “The Devil’s Brigade.” His seven years in combat earned him 115 decorations, 77 of which were for valor.

Gordon W. Kettler, a 34-year veteran of General Motors Corporation, is currently its General Director of Global Security. He served on the U.S. Department of State Overseas Security Advisory Council. He has also received the Director’s Community Leadership Award given by the U.S. Department of Justice.

Bill Livingood is currently Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives, with over 30 years of law enforcement experience. He was first appointed as Special Agent at the Secret Service’s Dallas Field Office, and has held several supervisory positions including Special Agent in Charge of the Presidential Protective Division.

Donald B. Weatherspoon, Ph.D. currently serves as Assistant Superintendent for the Michigan Department of Education as Director of the Office of Safe Schools, and as liaison to the Department of Corrections. As a former police officer, child welfare worker, research associate and project coordinator at Rutgers University-Eagleton Institute of Politics, he has developed a diverse and proficient public service career.

Message From the Director

Merry Morash

Ten years ago I assumed the position of Director of the School of Criminal Justice. My plan had always been to continue in that position for two five-year terms, which amounts to ten years. Starting March 1, 2001, my six month sabbatical begins. When I return, the School will have completed the search process for a new Director.

When I am no longer Director, my plans include completing a large backlog of writing that has accumulated. My research interests are in women and policing, domestic violence (especially in immigrant populations and in Asia), and women offenders and the programs that seek to help them. In each of these areas I have major writing projects underway, and also new ideas about extending the research agenda.

Faculty, specialists and support staff have extended themselves in countless ways over the last ten years to keep up with the many, many areas of growth within the School.

♦ We anticipate our Ph.D. program will increase from 30 to 50 students enrolled annually.
♦ Our Masters program, both on campus and through the Internet, has an excellent reputation and is attracting an increasing number of outstanding students from around the world.
♦ Undergraduates still view the School of Criminal Justice as a premier program.
♦ Externally funded research and training are at an all time high.

Beginning January 2001 the School began focusing on an aggressive development plan to update alumni across the nation, as well as working internationally, to encourage participation in several exciting initiatives to maintain a high level of innovation in academic as well as non-academic areas of the School. I’ll briefly mention three.

Nationally, the Brandstatter-Kettler Visiting Scholar Endowment emphasizes the need for our Undergraduate, Masters, and Ph.D. students to be exposed to the knowledge and experience among prominent practitioners in the field. The goal of this Endowment is to enrich the program through the involvement of visiting scholars and practitioners.

Internationally, the Dae Chang Endowment focus is for Undergraduate, Masters, and Ph.D. students to share knowledge with Visiting Scholars from all over the world. This process will prepare the graduates of tomorrow with the experience and knowledge to confront crime issues from a global perspective.

Finally, the Identity Theft University-Business Partnership works in collaboration with business and industry to prevent the theft of employees’ identities. The overall goal is the prevention and management of identity fraud through applied research and practical application.

The School of Criminal Justice recognizes the enterprise, energy, experience, and expertise alumni bring to its program. We also understand the importance of providing communication on the school’s academic as well as non-academic future. While I am on sabbatical, Chris Smith will be the Acting Director. Chris and I both welcome your comments and thoughts during this exciting time.
Meet Dr. Edmund McGarrell

Dr. Edmund McGarrell of Indiana University/Bloomington has accepted MSU’s offer to become the next Director of the School of Criminal Justice. Dr. McGarrell will begin his duties at MSU in mid-August. He spent thirteen years on the faculty at Indiana, including four years as Chairperson of the Department of Criminal Justice. He was also the Director of the Crime Control Policy Center at the Hudson Institute in Indianapolis. In addition, he previously taught at Washington State Institute for Community-Oriented Policing.

Dr. McGarrell received his Ph.D. from the State University of New York/Albany. He is the co-editor of books on community policing and community corrections and the author of a book on juvenile correctional reform. His scholarly articles focus on a variety of additional subjects, including public perceptions of crime and punishment, criminal law, and bail.

California Reception at Disney Downtown

California area alumni will get an opportunity to meet the School’s new Director on August 1, 2001. Co-sponsored by the School and the Criminal Justice Alumni Association, alumni and friends are invited to join Merry Morash and Ed McGarrell at the Disneyland Hotel, 1150 W. Magic Way, Anaheim, California. The invitation includes free access to Disneyland Resort, free parking and Disney Downtown.

The reception will go from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Guests are then welcome to take a leisurely walk to Downtown Disney and enjoy the unique themed dining, one of a kind retail shops and live dancing and music.

An RSVP is requested. Please contact Candy Curtis, Alumni Liaison, (517) 432-4784 or email her at Curtis7100@aol.com. She would like to hear from you even if you can’t make it this year.

Tenure Awards

At its June 22, 2001 meeting the MSU Board of Trustees approved the award of tenure to two Criminal Justice faculty members.

Judith M. Collins was awarded tenure and promoted to Associate Professor. Judy’s research interests concern causes and correlation of antisocial and criminal behavior and the statistical properties of tests used to research these issues.

Sheila Royo Maxwell was also promoted to Associate Professor with her award of tenure. Sheila’s current areas of interest are sanctioning processes and attitudes towards sanctions, community corrections, youth antisocial behaviors and delinquency, and cross-cultural criminology.

For more information on School faculty and their area of research interest, visit our web page at http://www.cj.msu.edu/~people/facpage.html.

Michigan Alumni Golf and Dinner

Michigan area alumni and friends will have an opportunity to meet the School’s new Director at a reception and dinner following the annual golf outing September 14, 2001. This year’s golf outing (see information elsewhere in this newsletter) and the dinner following will take place at the Brookshire Inn and Golf Club, 205 W. Church, Williamston, Michigan. Cost per person for the dinner is $20. If you would like more information, please contact Mary Lee VanderMoere (517) 355-2322.

Agenda:

5:00 p.m. - Cash Bar and Reception
6:00 p.m. - Dinner ($20/person)
7:00 p.m. -

♦ Tom Izzo,
Michigan State University Basketball Coach, (confirmed, unless an out-of-town recruitment trip supersedes)

♦ Merry Morash, Immediate Past Director of the School

♦ Art Brandstatter, Professor Emeritus, 1st Director of the School of Criminal Justice (health permitting)

♦ Edmund McGarrell, The School’s New Director

♦ Susan Trojanowicz, Special Guest
Dae H. Chang Endowment Established

Dae H. Chang, Ph.D., Founder, Editor for 23 years and now Editor Emeritus of the International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice has provided the School of Criminal Justice an opportunity to continue the tradition of the Journal. Upon Dr. Chang’s retirement from Wichita State University, the Journal’s ownership, operation and publication was transferred to Michigan State University School of Criminal Justice.

The Dae H. Chang Endowment has been established by the School to recognize the work of Dr. Chang and to provide resources for defraying a portion of expenses involved in inviting nationally and internationally recognized scholars, experts, researchers, and other individuals involved in the criminal justice arena, to the campus of the School.

Endowment Established

The School of Criminal Justice is pleased to announce the Max W. and Janet P. Houck Forensic Science Endowment. With proceeds from his book, Mute Witnesses: Trace Evidence Analysis, Max (’84 and ’88) and his wife Janet have generously established this endowment to reflect his gratitude for the education received at Michigan State University. Two professors, Norman Sauer and Jay Siegel, in particular offered financial and emotional support to Mr. Houck.

The endowment will provide funds for graduate level thesis or dissertation research in the field of trace evidence, for either the forensic science or forensic anthropology programs at MSU.

The significance of trace evidence and how it can link victims to suspects, is deftly illustrated in his book. In text that is easily understood by both the technical expert and the lay person, Mr. Houck uses a collection of unusual case studies to bring this point out. Many of the cases discussed are the result of his many years of employment with the FBI Trace Evidence Unit laboratory.

A second book is scheduled for release in 2002.

Dartmouth Medal

Jay A. Siegel, Professor in the School of Criminal Justice and Coordinator of the Forensic Science Specialization in the Master of Science Program at the School, is the Editor-in-Chief of the Encyclopedia of Forensic Science. Dr. Siegel has recently been advised by the encyclopedia publisher, Academic Press, Marketing Department, that the publication has received “Honorable Mention” for the prestigious Dartmouth Medal. This medal is presented by the American Library Association for “the creation of a reference work of outstanding quality and significance.” There are just 2-3 medals given each year and this is the first time the Academic Press/Harcourt has received one.

Career Fair 2002

The School of Criminal Justice will host its 2002 Annual Career Fair, February 12, 2002, at the Kellogg Center. Plan now to attend as an exhibitor and/or participate in mock interviews with students. For more information contact Tim Homberg, (517)432-3197.
President's Message . . David Westrate

I wish to thank the members of the CJ Alumni Board of Directors for supporting me as President for the next year. I am succeeding Bob Engel, Prosecuting Attorney in Emmet County, Michigan. I want to thank him for his service as a Board Member and President. Bob's leadership and field experience were reflected in his management of Board affairs and teamwork with other members and CJ staff. His efforts are appreciated.

We were advised at the Board Meeting on October 13, 2000 that Merry Morash will be stepping down as Director of the School of Criminal Justice early next year. She advised the Board that she would continue with her scholastic work on the staff and hopes to write some books. She has served as Director for many years and we all owe her a debt of gratitude for her commitment and leadership to the students and programs of the school. The school is actively involved in a number of wonderful initiatives, which keep it at the forefront of Criminal Justice Programs in the United States. The National Center for Community Policing has had us at the cutting edge in law enforcement for many years.

Director Morash has set additional priorities for the Criminal Justice Program in the critical area of forensic sciences, international outreach, legal matters, and security with an emphasis in computer security and technology. The school will continue to pursue a leadership role in these vital areas ahead. We now have an on-line Masters Degree Program to complement our traditional undergraduate and doctoral programs. Once again MSU has been a leader in providing opportunities for continued education off campus. We all can be proud of the progress of the Criminal Justice Program at MSU.

During my year as President, I hope to improve communication throughout the Alumni Association. I believe that there are greater benefits to be achieved between and among MSU CJ alumni and between the school and the alumni. Toward that end, renewed efforts will be made to publish the Alumni Newsletter in a more timely fashion. We will be seeking input to the newsletter from our membership and other initiatives will be taken to improve communications with you.

There are two items that I would like to call to your attention and I refer you to other articles in this newsletter for details. The first group of MSU CJ alumni have been selected and inducted into the new Wall of Fame at the school. These six special people have achieved greatness in our profession. I congratulate each of them on behalf of the Board and alumni members.

Secondly, a new initiative has been taken to establish a Visiting Scholar Endowment in the name of Art Brandstatter and Gordon Kettler. The concept of this endowment is to fund prominent practitioners in criminal justice to teach for extended periods at MSU. We expect that this endowment will bring another positive dimension to the school on behalf of the students.

I look forward to your support this year, and I would appreciate any ideas you may have to strengthen our common goals.

Family Legacy at MSU

by Richard Jewell, Alumni

I never really thought much of my family’s legacy at Michigan State University until several years ago when I realized that my grandfather, Don B. Jewell, started at M.A.C. in 1897 and graduated in 1901. My father, Paul N. Jewell, and my uncle, Robert Jewell, graduated from Michigan State College in 1933. My aunt, Gretchen Jewell graduated in 1934, my brother, Paul N., Jr., graduated in 1963, and my sister-in-law, Sharon Jewell, graduated in 1964. My cousin, Mickey Jewell, graduated in 1964, I graduated in 1978 (B.S.) and 1987 (M.S.), and my wife, Ilene, graduated in 1996. One hundred years of Jewells at Michigan State University. Hopefully my daughter will attend and make it four generations of Jewells at MSU!

Each of my family members went on to make a difference in many people’s lives. My grandfather was the agricultural agent in Benzie County for many years. My uncle and aunt taught school in Bay City for 25 years before retiring to Homes Beach, Florida. My father served in WWII and was a counselor and friend to many recovering alcoholics. My brother became a successful business owner in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. My sister-in-law is a highly regarded physical therapist in Milwaukee. My cousin, Mickey, was a highly decorated Navy pilot and officer. Sadly, my grandfather, uncle, father, and cousin have all passed on. Yet their influence can still be felt among us all.

My ties to this University run strong and deep! It is my family! Green and White are in my blood forever!

Grossman Addresses Alumni

Officer Safety. Lt. Grossman educated the participants on the benefits of police officers in our schools and the effect the media can have on our nation’s children. He stressed the importance of schools having prepared critical incident plans and educating students to report knowledge of a possible violent act. Lt. Grossman also stated that education and problem solving involving the entire community would help prevent future acts of school violence. He spoke of a recent incident where a tragedy was averted by other students reporting to officials that one of their classmates was going to bomb the school. The information turned out to be correct and with further investigation, he was going to plant the bomb in his car in the parking lot. Lt. Grossman said this incident clearly shows the positives of students reporting and the need for a comprehensive critical incident plan that meets communities current needs to insure a safe school.

The Alumni Association along with the School of Criminal Justice sponsored a reception and speaker forum on June 5, 2001 at the Kellogg Conference Center in East Lansing. Mary Beth Bartlett, Vice President of the Alumni Association, introduced Lt. Col. Dave Grossman who has served as an expert witness and consultant in both Federal and State Courts, including the United States vs McVeigh case. He is a psychology professor at West Point and one of the world’s foremost experts in the field of School Violence and

Dr. Carter Honored

Professor David Carter was recently honored with the “Outstanding Alumnus Award” for the College of Criminal Justice at Sam Houston State University. The award was given “in recognition of (his) outstanding contributions to criminal justice and the profession (and) exemplary representation of the College of Criminal Justice. The award was presented at a ceremony at Huntsville, Texas on April 28, 2001.
Board Thanks Outgoing Members

Each year five members of the Criminal Justice Alumni Board of Directors are elected/re-elected to the Board. This past fall, three members of the Board had fulfilled their two-term limit and retired after serving the School and its Alumni for the past six years. The three retiring members were Eva Medrano-Gonzales, Louise Alderson and Bob Engel. Bob had served as the Board’s chair for the past year. Jim Peacock and Greg Bria were re-elected for another three-year term.

....And Welcomes New Members

At its October 13, 2000 Board meeting, the Criminal Justice Alumni Board of Directors elected three new members to the Board. Those three were:

Kent Maurer (’75) is Deputy Chief of Police in Jackson, Michigan, making him second in command to that 90 person department. He came up through the ranks at Jackson, having started his career there in 1974.

Gary Raff (’73,’79) is currently Recruitment Manager for the Michigan Department of Corrections. Prior to joining the Department of Corrections, Mr. Raff worked in the Lansing School District in various positions, including football coach, teacher and assistant principal.

Charles Rinkevich (’62) is Vice President for criminal justice programs for Science Applications International Corporation (SAIC). Prior to joining SAIC, Mr. Rinkevich was the Director of the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC). Prior to that he spent eleven years with the U.S. Justice Department in various positions.

Board Vacancies

Under the provisions of the School of Criminal Justice Alumni Association Articles of Association, five Director vacancies will occur this November. Only two of the five current board members are eligible for re-election at the October 12, 2001 Board meeting.

Any alumni interested in running for the CJ Alumni Board should send a resume and brief introduction to:

Alum Appointed Director

As of July 24, 2000, Yoon-Ho Lee (’85,’87) is the Director of the Korean National Academy of Corrections. The Korean National Academy is an organization under the Korean Ministry of Justice. There are about 15,000 correctional workers throughout Korea. The Academy teaches and trains over 2,000 officers annually – both in-service and recruit training. Yoon-Ho will retain the Directorship for three years, as well as his professorship. During that time he hopes to add a research and development function, making that Academy similar to the U.S. National Institute of Corrections.

School of Criminal Justice Holds 1st Washington D.C. Alumni Event

Washington, D.C. offers many career opportunities in the fields of government and criminal justice, and quite a few distinguished graduates of the Michigan State University School of Criminal Justice live and work here. Recently, some of these Washington, D.C. area alumni decided that there would be a great deal of interest in holding a local meeting to communicate and network with other Criminal Justice alumni and professionals.

David Westrate, as the 2001 President of the Criminal Justice Alumni Association of Michigan State University, worked with alumni Bill Livingood and Alan Boehm to plan and coordinate this D.C. area Alumni Event. It was held on February 28th, at our nation’s capitol.

The event began with a reception at the Capitol Building, during which many D.C. area alumni had an opportunity to catch up with old friends and become acquainted with new ones.

Following the reception Merry Morash, Director of the School of Criminal Justice, gave an update about some future developments in the school. One of these efforts is to increase student numbers within the forensics program by increasing the number of faculty. Other future aims include offering students the opportunity to learn from a practitioner’s perspective, and preparing Criminal Justice students to compete in a global society by increasing international studies. Dr. Morash also relayed the fact that she has enjoyed working in the position of Director of the school, and was stepping down from this position effective March 1, 2001, with a new Director candidate search already underway.

Following Merry’s update, Bill Livingood, Sergeant of Arms of the House of Representatives, provided an informational and exciting tour of the Capitol. The tour of the House of Representatives floor was one highlight of note. Other items of interest to the tour group included the first flag to fly on the Moon and the key to the car that President John F. Kennedy was riding in when he was assassinated.

In all, it was a memorable night and a great learning experience. This was the first time such a meeting was held in Washington D.C., and all were pleased with its success.

With the interest shown in continuing these meetings, it has been proposed that they be held twice a year and may include a variety of guest speakers from the field of criminal justice. By helping alumni to come together and network, this presents a valuable opportunity for those involved to add to friends, knowledge and contacts.
Social Science Dean Appointed

The College of Social Science has a new Dean. Dr. Marietta Baba, who is currently a Professor and Chairperson of the Department of Anthropology at Wayne State University will assume leadership of our College on August 16, 2001.

Dr. Baba has met with various faculty and outreach staff, and clearly indicated by her words and visible enthusiasm that she was very impressed with the nature and range of activities in the School. She was also impressed with the “cutting edge” activities in all areas of MSU’s missions. Her enthusiasm provided a fine tribute and validation for the hard work and leadership in recent years by all members of the School faculty and staff. It is also a tribute to our alumni and the generous assistance, advice and financial support they provide.

Alumni Update

The School of Criminal Justice is currently updating their alumni database so we can continually keep you informed of the school’s activities and upcoming alumni events.

If you have changed address, employment or been married since 1994, please complete and return the form below, or e-mail to curtis7100@aol.com.

Dr. Conner Honored

Maureen Conner, Executive Director, Judicial Education, Reference Information and Technical Transfer (JERITT) Project and Assistant Professor is the recipient of the Ernest C. Friesen Award of Excellence. The award is presented by the Justice Management Institute (JMI) and is made annually to one who has demonstrated “vision, leadership and sustained commitment to the achievement of excellence in the administration of justice”. The award will be presented to Dr. Conner later this summer.

American Criminal Justice Association

A major activity for the Association is the annual Career Fair that ACJA sponsors in conjunction with Alpha Phi Sigma and the School of Criminal Justice Internship program.

This year’s Career Fair was held Tuesday, February 13th at the Kellogg Center on MSU’s campus. Approximately 70 local, state and federal agencies and organizations from across Michigan and the nation were represented at this year’s fair. In addition, mock interviews were held with practitioners interviewing students wanting practice and the experience of an interview.

Two Retire from School

After many years of invaluable service as our most revered instructor of policing courses for undergraduate and graduate students, Dennis Payne has retired. In the words of Acting Director, Christopher Smith, “Although we expect to conduct a search in the Fall of 2001 to find a new faculty member who specializes in policing, no one expects that anyone could “replace” Dennis Payne. He managed to combine the knowledge gained from his long years of experience in the Michigan State Police with a unique dedication to high quality teaching in order to produce an unsurpassed educational experience for our students interested in law enforcement.”

Susan Trojanowicz retired after 14 years of experience as the School’s primary Academic Advisor for undergraduates and master’s degree students. She earned her Bachelor of Science degree in Social Science Research from MSU in 1986 while raising a family and attending classes part-time. She began working for the School as a research specialist in 1987 and became an academic advisor in the fall of that year. She earned a Master of Science degree in Criminal Justice in 1992, completing her thesis on the theory of community policing. She has also co-authored articles on community policing with her husband, the late Robert C. Trojanowicz.
Forensic Sciences Program Seeking to Expand

The School, through Professor Jay Siegel has been working on a cross college effort to expand the School’s Forensic Science Program to attract students in biological forensic sciences (e.g., DNA), forensic chemistry, forensic anthropology, and other areas of forensics (entomology, geology, etc.). The proposed program would build on the large and diverse set of faculty at Michigan State University who are already involved in forensics. It is envisioned that the program would include a speaker series and externally funded research, particularly in the area of forensic biology.

Michigan State University has long been recognized as a premier institution for research and education in forensic science. The School of Criminal Justice administers the oldest continuously functioning educational degree program in forensic science in the United States, which is one of the largest in the world. The expanded Interdisciplinary Program would keep the School’s program on the cutting edge.

Patent Assists Evidence Collection

(MSU News Bulletin, May 17, 2001)

Jay Siegel, Professor of Forensic Science and Chemistry at the School of Criminal Justice, and Alvin Smucker, a Biophysicist and also a Professor at MSU have partnered to invent the Trace Evidence Concentrator. The Concentrator helps police by meticulously separating evidence – hairs, fibers, paint chips – from soil or materials vacuumed from a crime scene.

The system has a high-tech name – hydropneumatic elutriation. It includes a high kinetic energy vortex, air displacement and waterborne low energy separation, but looks remarkably similar to the new vacuum cleaners on the market. Materials that police collect are dumped into a stainless steel container. Hundreds of tiny, specifically angled jets of water are shot into the tube, creating a whirlpool.

The system, according to Siegel, is based on the idea that material that has less density than the surrounding soil particles will float apart from the dirt. Different filters further separate the remaining evidence, which comes out clean and ready for analysis in minutes rather than hours or days.

Siegel and Smucker hold the patent for the Trace Evidence Concentrator, which is licensed to and marked by Peak Industries of Dearborn.

Serial Murder Workshop Offered

The School of Criminal Justice, in partnership with the Michigan Association of Polygraph Examiners, have scheduled a one day workshop “Serial Murder Investigations.” The workshop will be conducted in the East Lansing area, October 18, 2001. The registration fee is $150 per person.

Workshop presenter, Robert D. Keppel, Ph.D., has personally investigated, reviewed, or consulted on more than 2000 murder cases. He has lectured extensively and testified in trials as an expert on the method of operation of serial killers, and the “signature aspects” of murder. He has also authored several articles and four books on homicide investigation.

For more information visit our website at http://www.cj.msu.edu. Registration information can be obtained by calling 800-892-9051 or e-mailing danah.henriksen@ssc.msu.edu.

Alpha Phi Sigma

Alpha Phi Sigma elected new officers for the period January 1, 2001 through Dec 31, 2001. They are:

Cheryl Reid, President
Dan Walker, Vice President
Adam Chapman, Treasurer
Zackary Keen, Secretary

The School’s only Honor Society has four meetings a year with mandatory attendance by members. Members are required to perform one community service activity per semester. The Society currently has 30 members, all of whom must have a GPA of 3.5 in CJ coursework. Membership generally consists of juniors and seniors. The Society has two primary goals: to provide members with opportunities to find out about careers once they’ve graduated, and community service.

John K. Hudzik, Dean of International Studies and Programs and Professor of Criminal Justice, was elected Vice President and President-Elect of the Association of International Education Administrators (AIEA) for 2001-03.

Dr. Hudzik currently serves as a member of the AIEA executive committee and chairperson of the standing committee on public policy, as well as interorganizational liaison to the Alliance for International Educational and Cultural Exchange.
School Changes Ph.D. Program

After a two-year planning and development process, the University gave final approval to changes in the School’s Ph.D. program in February 2001. Since its inception, the doctoral program had actually been an “Interdisciplinary Ph.D. in Social Science with a Concentration in Criminal Justice” under the administrative control of the College of Social Science. Beginning in Fall 2001, the program will be a “Ph.D. in Criminal Justice” under the administrative control of the School of Criminal Justice.

In the revised program, doctoral students will be required to take two newly created topical courses: CJ 904-Criminal Justice Organizations and Processes; CJ 905-Law and Society. Under the old program, doctoral students took statistics courses in other departments. Now we will offer our own two-course sequence of doctoral-level statistics in addition to new special topics courses for doctoral students. The program will retain its interdisciplinary character, but students will choose only one outside cognate area instead of two.

We believe these changes will strengthen our doctoral program as we continue to produce graduates noted for their professional success and important contributions to the field.

Fall 2001 Alumni Golf Outing & Dinner

Please join us this fall for an enjoyable day of renewing acquaintances with fellow alumni and meeting new friends at the Annual Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police/MSU-Trojanowicz Golf Outing. This event has long been one of the favorite social functions for the School. This year we have added an optional evening reception and dinner.

Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police/MSU-Trojanowicz Golf Outing

This year’s outing will take place at the Williamston, Michigan, Brookshire Inn Golf Course. As in the past, the outing will be a four-person scramble with a 10:00 a.m. shotgun start.

The $60.00 per person registration includes:

♦ 18 holes of golf
♦ Golf Cart
♦ Lunch
♦ Fun and Games

Proceeds benefit two scholarship funds: the Susan and Robert Trojanowicz Juvenile Justice Scholarship and the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police Youth Scholarship.

SUMMER 2001

School of Criminal Justice
Wall of Fame Nominations Sought

The School of Criminal Justice Alumni Board of Directors is seeking nominations for the year 2001 Wall of Fame honorees. Candidates must be graduates of the School of Criminal Justice/School of Police Administration. They may be living or deceased. Criteria includes:

♦ Distinctive accomplishments in any criminal justice field, such as law enforcement, courts, corrections, juvenile justice or security.

♦ Enduring contributions to the criminal justice profession and community, reflected in a career of dedicated service or accomplishment.

♦ Service given or personal commitments made that have significantly advanced criminal justice nationally and internationally.

To nominate a candidate, submit a written, 3 page maximum, narrative indicating the major contributions and/or accomplishments in any criminal justice related field or otherwise, which in your view qualifies the proposed candidate for admission to the Wall of Fame. The narrative should include the complete name (including name(s) under which attended Michigan State University), and date(s) of graduation, including degree(s). A current address and phone number should also be included.
