Michigan State University's (MSU) School of Criminal Justice certificate program allows working professionals and graduate students to add a specialization in homeland security to their career or academic plans.

The School of Criminal Justice at MSU is a national leader in homeland security, incident planning, and management. The School has decades of experience and proven expertise in both public and private emergency preparedness, planning, and training. The online Certificate in Homeland Security compliments the School's other emergency management offerings, including non-credit professional development certificate programs and courses for academic credit.

The Homeland Security Certificate program is designed for practitioners, students, and others interested in updating their knowledge, skills, and abilities to address the challenging issues of public safety in the 21st century.
