

CREW and the School of Criminal Justice

Present

William Isaac

Tuesday, November 7
12-1:30 PM
104 South Kedzie Hall

“Hope, Hype, and Fear: The Promise and Potential Pitfalls of the Artificial Intelligence in Criminal Justice”

CREW is the Class, Race and Ethnicity Workshop, sponsored by the Department of Political Science at Michigan State University.

William Isaac is a graduate student in the Department of Political Science at Michigan State University where he studies American politics and public policy. He is a 2017 Open Society Foundation Fellow and currently serves as a Research Consultant to the Human Rights Data Analysis Group (HRDAG). His research focuses on the intersection between technology policy, human, and civil rights, with a specific focus their potential ramifications on underrepresented communities."