ACADEMIC INTEGRITY: A CORE VALUE AT MICHIGAN STATE

ACADEMIC integrity and responsibility are fundamental values in a community of scholars. Doing your own work – and taking responsibility for that work – allows you to test your own abilities and receive honest feedback. Honesty and integrity within the University are fundamental to building the trust that is required for students and faculty to thrive and learn from one another. Violating this social contract erodes this trust. As students new to the university, it is important to be aware of your responsibilities as members of the MSU academic community.

ACADEMIC misconduct, cheating and plagiarizing violate these fundamental principles. At MSU, such misconduct is described as:

- using work or answers that are not your own;
- providing academic work or answers to another person;
- accepting or providing assistance with completing assignments or examinations;
- failing to cite others ideas, theories or written work when used in an assignment;
- interfering through any means with another's academic work;
- faking research data or results

For example, it would be a violation of academic integrity to:

- turn in an exam, paper or project that is not wholly your own work;
- get questions and/or answers from students who have already taken an exam or quiz you are scheduled to take;
- copy answers from another student's exam or test;
- work with other students to create a common set of answers to assignments without your instructor's permission;
- have another person take a test or complete assignments for you;
- submit the same paper for two or more classes;
- download answers to problems or projects and submit them as your own;
- collaborate with other students on projects or assignments without your instructor's permission

PLAGIARISM is a particular form of cheating that involves representing someone else's work as your own. Reports of plagiarism have increased as students turn to the Internet as a major source of data. "Cutting and pasting" is a dangerous practice since it is easy to assume credit for someone else's work. Plagiarism may include:

- copying sentences or phrases from the work of another without a citation;
- changing a few words in a sentence that is written by another and then claiming it as your own original work;
- using someone else's original idea without citation;
- failing to reference the source of data or facts;
- submitting a borrowed, purchased or downloaded paper

Properly attributing the ideas, words, processes and results of others (that is, including a citation) demonstrates respect for another scholar's work and effort.

CONSEQUENCES of academic dishonesty can be severe. If your instructor believes you have committed an act of academic misconduct, s/he may issue a penalty grade on the assignment or in the course. If your instructor gives you a penalty grade in the course, the MSU policy on "Integrity of Scholarship and Grades" requires your instructor to send a letter to you and your Dean to explain the circumstances. Depending on the seriousness and extent of the violation, the Dean may call for a college-level hearing to consider additional punishment against you. The hearing board can impose sanctions which include issuing a warning, placing you on warning probation, instituting disciplinary probation or suspending you from the university. Ignorance of university rules regarding academic misconduct cannot be used to exonerate you from sanctions.

Please refer to the complete policy on Integrity of Scholarship and Grades located in the Academic Programs catalog at <https://www.reg.msu.edu/AcademicPrograms/Text.asp?Section=112#s534>.

It is also important to understand that cheating and plagiarizing are considered fraud – a crime punishable by law enforcement outside the university. To clarify policies and procedures concerning academic integrity and academic misconduct at Michigan State University, visit the Ombudsperson at MSU (129 N. Kedzie Hall, 354 Farm Lane) or the Ombudsperson's web site: <http://www.msu.edu/unit/~ombud/>. All questions are welcome and inquiries may be made online through a secure server.
